A Campaign Paper.

In view of the great approaching political struggle, we are happy to announce that on the 15th of May we shall commence the publication of a Campaign Paper, with a direct view to the dissemination of Republican documents, figures and facts. It is generally conceded that the canvass of 1860 will be unusually violent. The friends of freedom will have to contest the ground inch by inch, and only by the most strenuous exertions will they be able to secure a victory over the combined forces of a corrupt Administration, and their passive coadjutors. It will be, emphatically, a working campaign. Republicanism must be disseminated, expounded, and illustrated. With a view to reach all classes with the necessary information, we shall publish

A CAMPAIGN PAPER.

It is hardly necessary to say to the Republicans, that much depends upon the circulation of our newspapers. It has been stated that at least two thirds of all who take newspapers will vote the Republican ticket in 1860. This is a significant fact, and while it gives us an insight into the comparative intellectual attainments of the respective parties, it should be a powerful incentive to our leading men to see to it that the papers are circulated. Every Republican club in the State should order a supply of these campaign papers for distribution. The cost is so insignificant that there is no reason why every voter should not have a copy.

Terms will be announced in a few days.

The Charleston Platform.

The following are the resolutions adopted by the National Democratic Senators, in their caucus:

1. Resolved, That, in the adoption of the Federal Constitution, the States adopting the same acted severally as free and independent sovereignties, delegating a portion of their powers to be exercised by the Federal Government for the increased security of each against dangers, domestic as well as foreign; and that any interpretation, by any one or more States, or by a combination of their citizens, with the domestic institutions of others, on any pretext, whether political, moral, or religious, with a view to their disturbance or subversion, as in violation of the Constitution, insulting to the States so interfered with, endangers their domestic peace and tranquility—objects for which the Constitution was formed—and, by necessary consequence, serves to destroy and weaken the Union itself.

2. Resolved, That negro slavery, as it exists in fifteen states of the Union, composes an important portion of their domestic institutions, tolerated from their nature and existing at the adoption of the Constitution, by which it is recognized as constituting an important element of apportionment of powers among States, and that no change of opinion or feeling on the part of the non-slaveholding States of the Union in relation to this institution, can justify them or their citizens in open or secret aggression thereon, with a view to its overthrow; and that all attacks on the manifest violations of the mutual and solemn pledge to protect and defend each other, given by the States respectively on entering into the constitutional compact which formed the Union, and are a manifest breach of faith and a violation of the most solemn obligations.

3. Resolved, That the Union of these States rests on the equality of rights and privileges among its members, and that it is especially the duty of the Senate, which represents the States in their Sovereign capacity, to resist all attempts to discriminate, either in relation to person or property, so as to in fact destroy the—which are the common possession of the United States—to give advantages to the citizens of one State which are not equally accorded to those of every other State.

4. Resolved, That neither Congress nor a Territorial Legislature, whether by direct legislation or legislation of an indirect and unfriendly nature, possesses the power to annul or impair the Constitutional right of any citizen of the United States to take his slave property in the common Territories; but it is the duty of the Federal Government there to afford for that, as for other species of property, the needful protection.

5. Resolved, That whenever experience shall have shown that the Executive and Judicial branches of the Government have not sufficient power to insure adequate protection to slave property in the Territories, and when the Territorial Legislature shall have failed or refused to pass such laws as are necessary for that purpose, it will then become the duty of Congress to interpose and pass such laws as will afford the necessary protection.

6. Resolved, That the inhabitants of an organized Territory of the United States, when they rightfully form a Constitution to be admitted as a State into the Union, may then, for the first time, for the people of a State, when forming a new Constitution—decide for themselves whether slavery, as a domestic institution, shall be maintained or prohibited within their jurisdiction; and if Congress shall refuse to admit them as they shall be received into the Union with or without slavery, as their Constitution may prescribe at the time of their admission."

7. Resolved, That the provision of the Constitution for the rendition of fugitives from service or labor, "without the adoption of which the Union could not have been formed," and the laws of 1793 and 1850, which were enacted in pursuance of it, are fundamental features of which being similar, bear the impress of nearly seventy years of sanction by the highest judicial authority, have unquestionable claim to the respect and observance of all who enjoy the benefits of our compact of Union; and that the acts of State Legislatures to defeat the purpose or nullify the requirements of that provision, and the laws made in pursuance of it, are hostile in character, subversive of the Constitution, revolutionary in their effect, and, if persisted in must, sooner or later, lead the States injured by such breach of the compact to exercise their judgment as to the proper mode and measure of redress.

A FIENDISH ACT.—On Monday morning the M. S. & N. I. R. R. Mail Train, going west, narrowly escaped being thrown from the track, near Ottowa Lake, by a rail which had been placed crosswise on the road by some malicious person. The rail became entangled in the "engine's pilot," and sliding on the track for some distance, it broke the pilot, and before the locomotive could be stopped, the train barely escaped being "thrown off."

A young man, named RABIDEAU, was arrested on the 6th, by the U. S. Marshall, on suspicion of being the one who placed the rail on the track, and he was taken to Monroe to await his trial. He is a young man about 18 years of age, and is respectably connected, his parents being members of the Presbyterian Church at Silvania, Mich.

THE HARTFORD COURANT states that the manufacture of odometers, for measuring the distance travelled by any vehicles, is now carried on somewhat extensively in that city. Livery keepers use them considerably, and in many cases the individuals who go off for a drive of five or ten miles and take twenty, are brought up "with a round turn" by this contrivance, and often to their great astonishment. Sundry instances are on record where these persons have agreed to pay the bill without grumbling, if the livery man would explain his means of information. They got the information sometimes, and sometimes they don't. The idea of attaching a watch to a wagon wheel to act as a watch on the driver, is altogether Yankee.

THE STONE QUARRY.—The valuable quarry to which we alluded a week or two since, lies about one-fourth of a mile east from Mr. P. B. Peck's. Recent examinations have so far confirmed the first anticipations, that Messrs. Reese & Williams have decided to use stone from this quarry for the front of their store, in preference to Milwaukee brick. We have a specimen in our office of solid lime stone. We are informed, however, that the quarry will not average as good as the specimen.—Berlin Courant.

LOST.—A young boy named Frank E. King, aged 10 years, left his home in this village, Thursday, March 1st. When last seen or heard from, he was at Geo. A. Birge's, half a mile south of Minnesota Junction.—Any information in relation to his whereabouts will be gratefully received by his afflicted parent, Erastus T. King, Horicon, Wis.—Horicon Argus.

Eau Claire County.

AUGUSTA, BRIDGE CREEK, March 4, '60.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—As your paper appears to be a faithful recorder of the growth and interests of our enterprising State, I here give you a short account of the progress of this rather remote part, if you feel disposed to give it a place in your valuable paper. We have not been dead nor sleeping, but awake and working, as you may judge from the following:

Four years ago there was not a single house or inhabitant, in an area of twenty miles square, comprising that part of Chippewa—now Eau Claire County,—lying East of that river; which is now interspersed with some three or four hundred farms, some of which have yielded forty bushels of wheat and sixty bushels of oats per acre. And also a village has sprung up, as if by magic, situated in the fertile and beautiful valley of Bridge Creek, bearing the name of Augusta. It has at its command an excellent water-power, which has been improved through the enterprise of JOHN F. STONE & Co., in the erection of a saw and grist mill. We have been visited the past winter by several herds of elk. CHAS. BUCKMAN, SCOTT DENISON and others, succeeded in killing nine out of about thirty.—The nine weighed 27 cwt. At our last Town meeting some seventy-two votes were polled, only six of which were Democratic.

Yours truly, &c.,
A SUBSCRIBER.

A Prolific Cow.

DEKORRA, March 9, 1860.

EDITORS OF THE MILWAUKEE SENTINEL:—Gentlemen:—As I am a subscriber to your valuable paper, and have done all I could to get you subscribers, I would ask a favor of you, to insert the following in your columns should you consider it worthy of notice:—

A cow in this village, belonging to Mr. GEORGE DONEBURGH, had four calves at one time, viz: two bulls and two heifers, but they all died after being dropped, owing to a severe storm at the time, they being in an exposed situation. This took place on the 16th of March, 1859, and on the 3d of March, 1860, the same cow had three calves at one time—one bull and two heifers, all doing well, this being seven calves in the inside of 11 months and 19 days time. Beat this who can. Respectfully yours,

JOHN BROWN, P. M.

Green Bay Items.

(From the Advocate of Thursday.)

HEAVY GALE.—One of the most terrific gales that we have experienced in many years, swept over this region on Saturday afternoon last, from the south-west. The heaviest of the gale commenced about noon, and it continued to blow fiercely for several hours. The damage done in this city was but slight, compared with what might have been anticipated. Signs were blown down, lumber piles scattered, awnings demolished, shaky buildings rendered more shaky, &c. The steamers Fannie Fisk and Queen City both lost the after portion of their hurricane decks—the latter being injured much more than the former. For a time apprehensions were felt for the safety of the Queen City, which lay in the ice in an exposed situation, just north of the city, but the ice gave way, and she swung round at right angles with her former position, her anchor proving sufficient to hold her, and escaped without further damage than that stated above. The damage to the Fannie will not exceed $100, while the Queen is injured probably to the amount of $200 or $300.

The battlement or false front of the "Empire Block" came down the side-walk with a crash, but fortunately no one was passing. The large skylight of Burkard's building, and also the small one on HOEFFEL'S building, corner of Washington and Pine streets, was torn off by the force of the wind, thrown into the yard, and destroyed.

Pedestrians were scarce in the streets, and what little crinoline ventured forth was rather too plainly visible to suit the taste of the wearers, at least we should judge so by the scampering.

The scene in the woods is described as frightful in the extreme. Large trees were overthrown or twisted off, and branches were scattered in every direction. On an old road in Wrightstown, eleven trees are reported lying across the road within 4 miles.

THE ICE.—Never since our residence in Green Bay, have we seen the ice in the Bay or River thicker or purer than it has been this winter; and we never have seen it work away more rapidly than it did on Wednesday, and Thursday of last week. For instance, a very valuable horse, belonging to the Peshtigo Lumbering company was drowned in the Bay, below the light-house, on Thursday, on the same track over which a loaded team had passed the day before with 7,500 pounds of grain and provisions.

On Friday afternoon a team of grey horses belonging to John Jacobs, of Menomonee, for which he paid $400, were drowned near the light-house.

On Saturday afternoon, a horse belonging to Morrow & Turner was drowned near the light-house by F. R. Schettler who had been down the Bay to carry home the Secretary of the Peshtigo Lumbering Co., who lost the horse on Thursday, and was returning.

Hendricks vs. Van Camp. Motion by Eaton for appellant to vacate order for dismissal. Argued.

Smith vs. Plank Road Company. Appeal dismissed on motion of appellant at his cost.

Winsor vs. Melvain. Motion by Spooner for leave to perfect appeal, &c. Motion by Winsor & Smith to dismiss, &c. Argued. Motion to dismiss denied, with costs. Motion to perfect appeal allowed on payment of $10 costs, appeal to be perfected in sixty days.

State ex rel. Rolke vs. Foote, Judge, &c. Motion to dismiss writ filed and argued.

Lake vs. Meecham. No. 7. Submitted for appellant on case and brief, and written argument.

Allen vs. Winne. Argued by Winsor and Smith for plaintiff in error, and Wyman and Spooner for defendant in error.

SIGNS OF SPRING.—The river at this place is entirely free from ice; the weather is mild and spring-like, and the warm rains of the past week have disturbed the ice somewhat in Lake Winnebago. There is a fair prospect of an early resumption of navigation on these waters. The boat and vessel owners here, have already begun to put their craft in running condition for the business of the season.

The logging camps in the Wolf river pineries are breaking up, and the lumbermen are coming down from their winter's campaign in the woods. The winter has been unfavorable for lumbering operations. There has been but little snow, which has increased the expense and labor of getting logs to the streams. The amount of logs "got in" is estimated at about sixty millions of feet—about two-thirds of the quantity which would have been got in had the season been favorable.—Oshkosh Courier, 9th.

RIPON & WOLF RIVER R. R. Co.—At a meeting of the stockholders of this Company held on Saturday last, the following persons were elected Directors for the ensuing year:

C. Bigelow, N. Olin, M. L. McLeran, C. L. Williams, D. P. Mapes of Omro, Philo England, of Berlin, C. R. Hamlin and F. M. Rowley, of Winneconne, and Hon. Curtis Reed of Menasha.

We understand that the affairs of the Co. are in a very flattering condition, and it is the intention of the new organization to push the work along with all possible speed.

FIRE.—A fire broke out at about twelve o'clock night before last, in what was the saw-mill belonging to S. A. Gillett, adjoining the mill of Messrs. Crosby & Hixon.—One end of the building was used as a stable by Messrs. Goodhue & Co., who had two cows, a horse and sleigh burned. We learn that it was with the utmost exertion that the valuable mill of Crosby & Hixon was saved. We have not learned whether there was any insurance on the building or not.—LaCrosse Rep.

THE CITY.

Arrest of the City Clerk.

The dip of Council or Lockwood's car into the smooth under-current of Municipal affairs seems to have stirred up more corruption than was even predicted by himself.—Certain disclosures were made on Saturday which led to the arrest of R. B. LYNCH, the City Clerk.

We have not the full particulars of the evidence against him of defalcation, owing to the lateness of the intelligence. But it is asserted that the investigating committee have struck a vein of corruption, which will yield a heavy crop.

We hear it stated, as we go to press, that E. L. H. GARDINER, has shared the like fate.

A MEETING of property owners and business men of the city took place, on Saturday evening, at the Chamber of Commerce, to take into consideration the interests of Milwaukee. Speeches were made by several prominent gentlemen, among whom were BYRON KILBOURN, Dr. JOHNSTON and Mr. J. H. TWEEDY.

Taxation, the La Crosse Land Grant and the diversion of the business of the State to Chicago, formed the staple of their remarks, with a highly applauded diversion on the part of Mr. TWEEDY in favor of the Milwaukee newspapers and official corruption. He declared that there was not a paper in the city that dared to expose corruption; that they received favors from all the officials, and would not expose them. He also hoped that if the meeting succeeded in its purpose, it would eventuate in an independent sheet, devoted to the interests of the property owners.

After several other gentlemen had spoken, a constitution or league was signed, and steps taken to form a committee to appoint sub committees to attend to the interests of the city, both at home and at Madison.

The meeting was highly respectable and very enthusiastic. The events of the afternoon would seem to indicate that our city does indeed need looking after, and the matter could scarcely be in better hands than those represented on this occasion.

THE GREAT MUNICIPAL TRIBULATION.—Mr. and Mrs. BLOGGERS recently returned home from some evening entertainment at Albany Hall. As they reached their beautiful residence on that lovely Avenue yclept Main, they were surprised to find the approaches all closed and guarded by two cows, three horses, four pigs and a goat. The horses stood across the walk, the cows rested their weary heads on the immaculate fence, and one of the pigs lay on the door mat. This was unpleasant; indeed, we may say with much truth, highly abominable. The BLOGGERS are peaceable folks. Mrs. B. is notoriously tender-hearted she; would not hurt even the animalculae in her drinking water, and has been known to go out of her way rather than tread on a snake. What was to be done! It seemed cruel to disturb this innocent conclave. It was no easy matter to quietly effect an entrance. There were some fifteen hundred pounds of beef across the gateway. Public pork usurped the threshhold. Mr. BLOGGERS walked up to the nearest cow and said in an enticing manner, "shea, Suky, get along with you!" but the docile animal, in her confidence, only dropped her head to the walk and stood her ground. "That horse is chewing my young maple, as sure as I live," added Mr. B. raising his cane like a fire-lock.

"Why, JAMES, aint you ashamed of yourself," said Mrs. B., "to strike that poor horse, just as though he knew any better. The poor thing never gets anything to eat or it wouldn't 'chaw' that tree, I'm sure."

"Yes, and there's the infernal cow has laid down right across the gateway," continued BLOGGERS, "I suppose we must go round to our friends and stay."

"Do look at that dear pig on the stoop. If he aint got two or three little ones there a suckling them," exclaimed the lady in raptures.

"And that goat, too, poor creature, how fond he is of lilac twiggs. Yes, JAMES, let us go round to Mrs. MILIKENS and stay to-night—it would be cruel to disturb these poor brutes—that sweet little pig, how cold it must be for it."

And so they went round on Main street, but finding a bay mare asleep on the piazza concluded not to disturb the MILIKENS and posted off to their friend JONES in the Third Ward. On arriving in Michigan street, they were fortunate enough to find him up. That worthy being engaged with a lasso at an upper window—practicing, he said, in throwing and tripping cattle preparatory to his trip to the plains in the Summer.

And so the BLOGGERS at last got sheltered. Since then, however, BLOGGERS says the city is not as humane as he supposed—that certain individuals in the Third Ward do a large dog propagating business, raising canines by steam for the more lucrative pleasure of burying them, for which the city pays fifty cents a head.

THE FREE DEMOCRAT of Saturday contains a communication directed at CALEB WALL, and in which it is stated:

"At the request of the friends of Miss Sprague, the trance speaker, who is now lecturing in this city, two of our prominent business men made application to Mr. Caleb Wall for the use of Albany Hall on Sunday next, for the better accommodation of those who might desire to listen to this gifted speaker, the Hall in which she has been speaking proving too small to accommodate all who might be glad to hear her.

Imagine the surprise of the petitioners upon being told by the "inimitable" Caleb, that he was "opposed" to such meetings, and could not conscientiously lease the Hall for such purposes.

We are requested by Mr. WALL to say, that he explicitly stated he would not let the Hall on the Sabath for any but religious purposes.

This, it will be perceived, is somewhat different from the statement made in the communication. Mr. WALL has been applied to on various occasions for the use of the Hall on Sunday for amusements, and has invariably declined opening it, but expresses his willingness to let it on all other occasions for any respectable exhibition. We presume CALEB has a right to regard the trance speaking as an amusement, and a right to open or not open the Hall as he sees fit.

WORCESTER'S QUARTO DICTIONARY.—In another column will be found an advertisement of this great Lexicon. The best authorities pronounce it superior to Webster's, it being free from the etymological objections which have beset the latter named work. It is illustrated with fine engravings and offered for the remarkable sum of $7 50 by the publishers, SWAN, BREWER & TILESTON, Boston.

CONCERT OF THE MUSICAL SOCIETY.—Tomorrow evening the Musical Society gives its one hundred and second concert, at Albany Hall. The programme is of the usual strength—a judicious admixture of vocal and instrumental pieces, with several chorusses.

CALEB WALL has a very large sale of Clothing, Dry Goods and a variety of other articles on Tuesday next, (March 13th) at his Auction Room, No. 196 East Water St.

FRANZ HOLZLEHNER, the accomplished artist and musician, and well known to scores of our citizens, is about to visit Europe on a professional tour, taking with him a portfolio of Wisconsin sketches, which we have no doubt will return to us in the Leipsig Illustrated. These scenes, gathered during Mr. HOLZLEHNER'S residence in our State from all its pleasant locations, will, we have no doubt, have a tendency to give our German friends on the other side of the Atlantic a new and higher opinion of North-Western America.

Mr. HOLZLEHNER, at the solicitation of his many friends, has consented to give a concert previous to his departure, which is announced to come off at the Academy of Music on Monday, March 26th. His known ability enables us to bespeak for him a large audience.

IMPORTANT TO MILWAUKEE MERCHANTS.—It has always seemed a little curious to us that Milwaukee merchants have never made an effort to secure the immense trade of the Chippewa Valley. With two or three exceptions they have never advertised in this section, and we believe none of them have ever been this way to try and secure business for their metropolis. They do not seem to be aware of the fact that this valley pays nearly a half million dollars annually for goods, and that the most of those goods can be sold in Milwaukee as cheap as they can in Chicago, St. Louis, Albany and New York, adding transportation. The new route across to Grand Haven is turning almost the entire trade of this section through Milwaukee; and if her merchants would take the pains to show up the advantages of that point as a commercial centre for the North-West, they would derive a vast benefit therefrom. All of our surplus grain is sent to Milwaukee, and the most of our goods might be advantageously bought there. That point can be more easily reached, summer and winter, than any of those above mentioned. We are satisfied that Milwaukee might do a good trade with this valley, if she would. Will she do it?—Eau Claire Free Press.

ACCIDENT.—F. D. Sine, Esq., fell into the river this morning, near Spring street bridge. He was fortunately rescued by some of our boys, escaping with no other injuries than a cold bath, and some slight contusions.—Free Democrat.

We are intimately acquainted with Mr. SINE, and always supposing he made himself too conspicuous, are sorry he was not buried fathoms deep in the mud, just for the joke of the thing. The Mr. F. D. SINE that we mean used to stay on top of the Free Democrat office.

FIRE.—On Saturday night a fire was discovered in the Lumber office of LUDINGTON & CO., on the corner of Oneida and West Water streets. When discovered, the flames were issuing from a corner of the room on the second floor, where was heaped a large quantity of combustible rubbish. It was speedily extinguished with trifling loss.

Nearly ten thousand copies have already been distributed in this country and in England; and although we are receiving factory upwards of two hundred copies daily, we are as yet far behind our orders.

The following brief extracts will show in what estimation the work is held by some of the most eminent scholars in America:

"It is authority among scholars everywhere."—JAS WALKER, D. D.

"The most important dictionary of our language."—C. C. FELTON, LL. D.

"The Standard Dictionary of our language."—M. B. ANDERSON, LL. D.

"A proper monument of accurate scholarship."—MARK HOPKINS, D. D.

"It is the best dictionary I have ever seen. I have used it almost three years, and in the whole, and with some exceptions, the best and most convenient dictionary that I know of."—DANIEL WEBSTER, LL. D.

"I think a thesaurus of the English language."—J. T. CHAMPLIN, D. D.

"No scholar can afford to be without your Dictionary."—C. S. LONGACRE.

"That which is superior to any other general Dictionary."—GEORGE P. MARSH.

"I regard it as one of the best, if not the very best published in our language."—RICHARD HOOPER.

"I believe it to be decidedly the superior of Webster's Dictionary that has been left imperfect."—ANDREW P. PEABODY, D. D.

"I have felt myself wholly safe in your hands when I had your smaller Dictionary. But with this 'Leviathan' it would be superfluous to look further."—JOSEPH LOVERING.

"The Dictionary is indeed a monumental work."—OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES.

"I have no doubt it is the best."—ASA GRAY, A. M.

"It is an honor, not only to Boston, but to the whole country."—E. N. HORSFORD, A. M.

"More than equal to my expectations."—S. G. BROWN, A. M.

"The best and the most unexceptionable Dictionary of the English language."—GEORGE B. EMERSON, LL. D.

"It surpasses, I suspect, the best, the most complete and learned."—HORACE WEBSTER, LL. D.

"It is a Thesaurus of the language."—S. H. TAYLOR, LL. D.

"The best Lexicon of the English language."—EDWARD ROBINSON, D. D.

"It is an honor to our country and the English language."—HENRY A. BOARDMAN, D. D.

"The most satisfactory of all the authorities of English lexicography."—FRANCIS HOWER, A. M.

"The standard Dictionary of the English language."—JOEL PARKER, LL. D.

"Of all the American Dictionaries of our language, your quarto Edition will be hereafter, in the first place to be consulted."—FRANCIS LIEBER, A. M.

"The new and authentic etymologies, the conciseness and completeness of the definitions, the nicety with which the different shade of meaning in synonyms are distinguished, and the conscientious accuracy of the words in the department of science, in my judgment, the highest claims to public favor."—WILLIAM CULLEN BRYANT.

"The most copious, the most useful, the most perfect work of a Standard Dictionary of the English language, which has so long existed, is now supplied, thank Heaven."—GEO. P. MARSH.

"I cannot conceive that it has left anything to be desired in respect to definitions, quotations, etymology, pronunciation, conjugations, and whatever enters into the idea of a perfect Dictionary."—W. B. SPRAGUE, D. D.

TELEGRAPH!

REPORTED BY THE N. Y. ASSOCIATED PRESS, FOR THE DAILY SENTINEL.

Washington Matters.

WASHINGTON, March 9.

The Secretary of War to-day communicated to the House, in compliance with a resolution, the report of the assistant commissioner, who recommended an appropriation of 167,000 to be expended for statuary and pictures for the adornment of the Capitol. They suggest a preference to be given to American artists, and that the embellishments should be purely of a national character. In this connection they do not speak in very complimentary terms of the ancient subjects chosen for the wall pictures of the committee rooms.—They say that as a general principle, the true method of procuring designs for statuary and pictures, is to invite competition.

The receipts of the Treasury during the past week were $2,706,000, including Treasury notes. The drafts paid were over four million dollars. The amount of drafts issued was nearly $378,000. The reduction from the amount paid on the previous week was $1,050,000. The amount subject to draft was $4,673,000.

At the conference of the Opposition members from Pennsylvania last night, in regard to the tariff, they agreed to recommend to the committee on Ways and Means to fix specific duties on iron at the following rates:—On pig iron, $7 per ton; railroad iron, $12 per ton; common bar, $15 per ton; fine bar, 1c per pound; boiler iron, 1-4c per pound; Russia sheet, 1-2c per pound.—These are the principal provisions, though scrap and other kinds are provided for.—This proposition has not yet been submitted to the Ways and Means committee, and may be modified before being presented in the new bill to the House. It is probable that the tariff will be reported about the middle of next week, before all the appropriations are submitted, to give it a proper position in the order of business.

Twenty million dollars of Treasury notes granted by the last Congress, will expire on the 1st of July, and the house will not authorize a reissue, but require them to be funded. It is now proposed to connect this loan with the tariff bill, as the revenue derived from that source, after defraying the regular expenditures of the government, will be applied to the extinction of the indebtedness, there being no other resource. The Senate, which resisted before, will yield now, but may compel some concessions on the tariff.

The Washington despatch says, S. C. Boyington, appointed clerk in the stationery room of the House of Representatives, is the person announced as having absconded money. He never served a day in the office, but a week or two ago he obtained from his confidential friends nearly $200,000 worth of transferrable postoffice certificates, made payable to him. The report is that he raised upon them in New York about 80 cents on the dollar, and left for Europe—at any rate he has not returned here. He has been serving the Administration for several years in one of the departments. The government will lose nothing by him.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATION.

FOR CHIEF JUSTICE OF THE SUPREME COURT,

A. SCOTT SLOAN.

"Circulate the Documents."

We trust that our Republican friends in this State realize the importance of the coming Presidential contest, and are prepared to make all honorable efforts to ensure the victory. Among the most efficient means to secure this result is the timely and thorough distribution of campaign documents. Many a man may be converted to the true Republican faith now, who, in the heat and excitement of later period of the canvass, will be deaf to reason. We know of no more advisable, or convincing political tract to circulate among the masses than the great speech of Gov. SEWARD, in the U. S. Senate, on the Kansas question. It is the embodiment of Republican faith and practice, and a triumphant refutation of all the electioneering charges, so persistently urged against the Republican party. It should be placed, if possible, in the hands of every voter in this State. The SENTINEL will do its share to give the speech the widest circulation. In addition to our regular issue, we print to-day an edition of twenty thousand copies of the weekly; putting them at cost price. We urge our friends in all parts of Wisconsin to help circulate this speech among the people. It makes proselytes wherever it is read.

As to this campaign document the N. Y. Tribune advertises the following list:

I. THE IRREPRESSIBLE CONFLICT:—Gov. Seward's famous Rochester Speech of 1858; bound up with Charles O'Conor's Union Meeting Speech—Dec. 19, '59—arguing that Negro Slavery is essentially, radically evil, and humane: To which are added brief opinions of many eminent men on the subject thus discussed.

II. THE DEMOCRATIC LEADERS FOR DISUNION: Speech of Henry Wilson, of Mass., —in Senate, Jan. 25, 1860—showing by copious citations that the leading Democratic orators and politicians are fully resolved to destroy the Union when they can no longer rule it

III. THE ADMISSION OF KANSAS: Gov. Seward's great Speech—in Senate, Feb. 29, 1860—summing up the political issues of the day.

IV. NATIONAL POLITICS: Speech of Abraham Lincoln, of Illinois—at the Cooper Institute, New York, Feb. 27, 1860—explaining and defending the position and views of the Republican party on the subject of Slavery: To which is added, Hon. James R. Doolittle's vindication of the Republicans of Wisconsin from the charge of Nullification.

Will be published forthwith:

V. LAND FOR THE LANDLESS: Hon. Galusha A. Grow's Speech—in the House, Feb. 29, 1860—in exposition and advocacy of the Republican policy of granting the Public Lands in limited tracts to Actual Settlers for the bare cost of survey and sale.

Each of the above is printed on fair type and good paper, forming a large octavo double-column tract of sixteen pages. They are sold in quantities of One Thousand or over for one cent per copy; and the Thousand may be made up from the list above given in such quantities of each as the buyer may desire. In smaller quantities, $1,25 per hundred, 25c per dozen; single 4 cents.

Will not our Republican friends aid us to "circulate the documents?" Now is the time when thousands of minds can be reached and influenced, which, three months hence, will be hardened like flint against conviction.

The Land Grant—Opinion of Att'y-Gen. Howe.

Attorney-General HOWE, in response to a resolution from the Assembly, inquiring of him whether the Legislature can lawfully repeal the act of 1856, granting certain lands to the La Crosse and Milwaukee R. R. Company, and revoke and annul the rights and franchises of said Company, has given a lucid and able opinion, which is printed at length in the Assembly journal of Thursday last. In reply to the first query, the Attorney General expresses the opinion that the Legislature has the power to repeal the grant, and he sustains this opinion by strong arguments. As to the second question, after stating that the rights of the La Crosse road under the act of 1856 must be ultimately determined by the courts, he continues:

By the terms of the act of 1856, the interest of the State is conveyed to the Company by words of present grant, but with a proviso that the title to the lands shall vest only in a particular manner, and upon the happening of a certain contingency.

The legal effect of this grant, in my judgment, is that of an agreement on the part of the State, that when the Company shall build twenty consecutive miles of railroad, so as to admit of running regular trains thereon, and the Governor of the State shall certify that fact to the proper department of the United States Government, then the title shall vest to a portion of the lands, and the Governor shall furnish the Company with the evidence of that by the execution and delivery of a deed.

The company did not take any present interest in the fee of the lands granted by Congress. They took simply a right to acquire an interest in a particular manner. They had a kind of exclusive right of pre-emption —the first and the sole right to purchase, nothing more.

Whether they have built twenty consecutive miles of road and have received a certificate therefor from the Executive, are questions of fact.

If they have, they have a fee of so much of such lands as the act gives, for the length of road constructed.

If they have not, I have no hesitancy in saying they have no interest whatever in those lands.

As we have already seen, the Legislature, both by virtue of the Constitution and of the act itself, have the right to repeal this act. When they shall have done so, the right of this company, to acquire a title to any more of this land than they have already obtained, will be gone, because their right to build any more of the road will be gone. The only means they have for getting the title will have been taken from them. The title for the remainder will remain in the State, subject only to the requirements of the act of Congress.

THE HOMESTEAD LAW.—HON. G. A. GROW, of Pennsylvania, has been making an excellent speech upon the Homestead Law, a subject that he has carefully examined, and in which he has taken a deep interest for many years. A law of this kind has three times passed the House of Representatives within seven years, but has eventually been defeated by a Democratic Senate or the veto of a Democratic President. Out of one hundred and thirty Democrats in the House of the last Congress, but thirty one voted for it.—Only six Democrats voted for it in the Senate, while every Republican in the Senate voted for it, and every Republican in the House voted for it with one exception. In the commencement of this speech, Mr. GROW gives the history of the origin and rise of the public land system of the United States.—From the statement it appears that the Federal Government, by cessions from the original States, and by the purchase of Louisiana, Florida, California, New Mexico, and Utah, has acquired, exclusive of water [illegible] 450,000,000 acres of public l[illegible] there have been s[illegible]ld. Of these, while there [illegible]ain, 147,088,274 acres; [illegible] have been granted and donated to individuals, companies, corporations and States, 241,770,052 acres. This leaves undisposed of, and now in the possession of the National Government, one thousand and sixty-one million one hundred and forty-one thousand six hundred and seventy-five acres. It is only asked that the free laboring men of the nation can have 160 acres each of this land, it they will settle upon it and improve and cultivate it.

A LETTER FROM CAPT. BARRY TO ADJUTANT GENERAL DE AIR.—The following letter, addressed to Gen. Swain, has been handed to Col. King, with a request that he should transmit it to Gov. Randall, in case Gen. Swain is not in the State. It explains itself.—News of Saturday.

The letter in question, instead of being transmitted to Gov. RANDALL, was returned to the writer, the main purpose for which it was written—publication in the News—having been accomplished.

Seward and Douglas.

Those who affect to slight the influence of Senator SEWARD'S recent speech with the country, make much of the paltry and vindictive effort of DOUGLAS to parry his homethrusts. We commend those who admire the smartness of DOUGLAS' repartee more than the able and dignified argument and historical resume of Gov. SEWARD, to the following remarks of the Boston Journal:

"If one wishes to see the difference between a statesman and a demagogue, he should read the speech of Senator Seward, which we published yesterday, and the subsequent remarks made by Senator Douglas, which we publish elsewhere to-day. We do not refer exclusively to the comparative correctness of the positions assumed by the two speakers, but also to the fairness of statement, dignity and courteous display by the one, and wholly wanting in the other. Mr. Douglas, indeed, seems to have been more reckless and coarse than is his wont in the Senate. The full report, doubtless, will show some logical connection between his views of the failure to carry the Missouri Compromise line, previous to 1856, to the Pacific, and the prevailing excitement on the slavery question; but no one can make out the relation from the report which has yet come to hand. The same may charitably be said of other mysterious assertions in his speech.

But there are other things in Mr. Douglas' remarks which carry their condemnation on their face. The shoemakers' strike in this State, affords a man of his cast too good an opportunity to be neglected; and so he takes up and drums away upon a pretence which has been thoroughly exploded here, and soon quietly dropped by our partisan presses, viz: that the strikes are owing to the falling off in Southern custom, caused by the politics of the shoemakers. This he calls the first fruit of Republican doctrine. The ignorance of the Senator of the state of his country's internal trade is astonishing—or else his effrontery is still more so. In this case we should attribute his assertions to the former defect, but in the context, effrontery decidedly predominates. Witness his talk about "unholy combinations in New England, that shipped men to Kansas—rowdies and vagabonds, with the Bible in one hand and Sharp's rifle in the other, to shoot down the friends of free institutions." Witness his declaration, controverted by unimpeachable evidence, that societies were not formed in Missouri to interfere in the affairs of Kansas, until after the organization of the Emigrant Aid Society. Witness his unblushing assertion that leading Republicans, when among the people of the North, hold out the idea that it is the mission of the Republican party, if successful, to abolish Slavery in the States as well as in the Territories.

No wonder that such a demonstration, following the masterly address of the Senator from New York, was not generally deemed a success, and that, according to the correspondent, "the audacity of some of the statements was received with derisive laughter." But it was Mr. Douglas' last bid for Southern support in the Charleston Convention. It remains to be seen if this is the kind of tender which is esteemed in that quarter; or whether there is not in this world still, a broad distinction between taking any man's assistance in any shape it is natural for him to give it, on the one hand, and, on the other, requiting him for it in just the way he happens to prefer.

The Increase of the Slave Trade.

All accounts from the coast of Africa represent the slave trade to be very brisk and to be prosecuted chiefly in American vessels. A letter from on board the U. S. ship Portsmouth, of the African fleet, says:

"The trade has increased beyond measure; our flag has been subject to continual annoyance and surveillance from British cruisers, because our ships have not been near to attend to their duty, to fulfill their obligations, to board and examine American ships, to take their own prizes, and to keep in check the overbearing spirit of the English officers. Consequently everything is in confusion; there are no united, harmonious, co-operative efforts made to suppress the trade; and our national reputation has suffered lamentably in the eyes of England. The few months' experience we have had on the coast has not been altogether thrown away. It has thoroughly convinced us that the whole slave coast is, we may say, lined with slavers, who are generally from New York, cleared from the Custom House, bringing all the appliances of the trade with them, manoeuvring about on the coast, under various pretenses and disguises of legal traffic—particularly under that most specious blind, the obtaining of palm oil, until the favorable moment having arrived, the cargo is shipped, and a few hours find them out of danger, on their way to the West Indies.

The examination as to the New York ship, Orion, lately taken with slaves, off the African coast by a British naval vessel, has been completed at St. Helena, and the ship has been condemned, as beyond question a slaver. The officers, Capt. Morgan and two mates, were delivered up at the demand of the American consul, to be sent to this country for trial, and the slaves were sent to the British West Indies as apprentices.

There has been another cargo of slaves from some quarter landed on or near the coast of Georgia. The Macon Telegraph mentions the passage through that place of sixty or seventy negroes, bought in the south-western part of the State, who were on their way to New Orleans for sale. They were supposed to be genuine natives of lower Guinea, landed by slave ships on the coast, but a majority of them spoke a sort of mongrel French—a fact that placed their origin in considerable doubt. The Macon paper speaks of the arrival of slave ships on the coast as something anticipated, and not at all a matter of astonishment.

Third Judicial Circuit.

Correspondence of the Sentinel.

WAUPUN, March 8, 1860.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—In conversation with quite a number of the prominent members of the Bar of the Third Judicial Circuit, I find, almost without exception, that they speak of Hon. C. BILLINGHURST, if he would consent to become a candidate, as one who would make just the right kind of Judge to fill the "vacancy" in the Third Judicial Circuit.

If the people will give any indication of their preferences, through your paper, or any other, we may be able to have a Judge for the next six years. STRAWS.

A LIQUOR SELLER MULCTED.—The Ohio liquor law has a provision that the wife, child, parent, guardian, employer or other person, who shall be injured in person, property or means of support by an intoxicated person, has a right of action against the party who sold the liquor, if sold contrary to law. Mrs. JANE BRUSH, of Urbana, has just recovered damages of PETER LAWSON to the amount of $5,000 under the above section.—LAWSON sold the husband of Mrs. BUSCH one pint of whiskey, with which he became intoxicated, and in his drunken fury chopped off the left foot of the plaintiff. She sued for $20,000 damages, and the jury awarded her $5,000.

THE NEW MSS. BIBLE FROM MOUNT SINAI.—The new MSS. Bible discovered by Prof. Tischendorf in the library of the monastery on Mount Sinai is to be printed in St. Petersburg with great magnificence, under his care and at the cost of the Imperial Government. Prof. Tischendorf finds strong reasons for fixing its date in the first half of the fourth century; and, he says, that as a means of determining the text of the sacred writings, especially those of the Apostles, it is far more important than even the MSS. of the Vatican. The age of the new MSS. has already been the subject of lively controversy, a concerted attack having been made upon Prof. Tischendorf's deductions by a number of St. Petersburg Academicians. His replies were, however, so satisfactory that his opponents have become converts to his belief.

This MSS. is the oldest MSS. of [illegible] which has been preserved [illegible] the Bible world. It is far [illegible] in the Christian the Vati[illegible] older than any other except [illegible] MSS., to which it is superior in age and in completeness, for the MSS. of the Vatican lacks five books entirely and in one part. Its authority is also confirmed by the quotations of the early Fathers, which agree with it more nearly than with any other MSS.

Prof. Tischendorf has already filled ten folio volumes with Bible documents, and may be presumed to know as much about the correct version of the Bible as anybody. His seventh edition of the New Testament is the standard. He will illustrate this edition profusely with philosophic fac similes; and while he is sure that the original MSS. will, as soon as it becomes known, be esteemed throughout Christendom as a great national treasure for Russia, he hopes to make the editio princeps of it a worthy monument of Imperial munificence, and one which the whole Christian world shall receive with grateful thanks.—N. Y. Tribune.

DRINKING.—The first draught serveth for health—the second for pleasure—the third for shame—and the fourth for madness.

Strange, but True Love Story.

From the Holmes Co. (Ohio) Farmer.

In 1847, there lived in the town of Landshut, Bavaria, a young mechanic named Louis S——, who had just arrived at the age of twenty-one years. He became acquainted with a young woman, the daughter of a wealthy citizen, noted for her beauty and many accomplishments. The two were soon deeply in love with each other, and were living in the blissful anticipation of soon enjoying a world of happiness in wedded bliss.—The matter was mentioned to the girl's father, who became very indignant at the presumption of the young man, who was poor, in asking the hand of one so wealthy as he. The young man was driven from his house, and threatened with personal violence should he return. With a sorrowful heart and eyes wet with tears, Louis bade adieu to Susan, for that was the girl's name, and set sail for America on the 18th of April, 1848, in the ship Calois.

The ship was out two weeks, wildly tossed on many a rolling billow, when one stormy, dark night, the 27th of April, 1848, she was struck by an English vessel, and in less than twenty minutes sunk to the fathomless depth of the ocean, carrying several of the passengers and crew to "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns." Just as the vessel was going down Louis S—— and John Hershberger, who in the voyage had become intimate personal friends, plunged into the briny deep, and fortunately almost immediately got upon a large plank, and were quickly carried far from the scene of the disaster.

The English ship hovered around for several hours, and gathered up a number of the passengers of the Calois, but Louis and Hershberger had, in their frail bark, got beyond hailing distance, and the vessel went on her way without them. For thirty-six hours they were on this plank in the middle of the ocean, enduring all the horrors of anxiety, hunger and thirst, when they were picked up by the since ill-fated ship City of Glasgow, bound for Philadelphia, where they arrived on the 6th of May, 1848. Hershberger hired with a barber in Philadelphia, and Louis S—— came on foot to our neighboring county of Stark, where he worked two months, and then came to this county and commenced work at his trade, as a partner in an established shop. He was a very fine workman, sober and industrious, and soon gained the confidence of his customers and neighbors.

The result was that he soon had all the money he needed, and some to loan, which he was always careful to put in safe hands. In the year 1850, he made the acquaintance of a farmer's daughter, of this county, and on the 29th of November of that year, he was married to her. He continued to prosper, and, in 1852, purchased a fine farm, and went to farming. In June last, his wife died, leaving four children—two boys and two girls—to battle the storms of life without a mother.

News had been taken back to Germany of the loss of the Calois and most of her passengers, and among them Louis and young Hershberger. The girl, Louis's first love, was sorrow-stricken with the sad news of Louis's supposed death, for she still hoped that fortune would favor them so that they might marry at some time. "Hope springs eternal in the human breast," and it was this that strengthened the young girl to bid farewell to her lover, and pray to Heaven that he might be safely carried over the pathless ocean; but when the sad news of his death reached her, she was for many months almost frantic; her rosy cheeks gave way for a death-like pallor, and her friends feared that they would soon have to follow her to the grave. Time, however, had its effect, and she finally apparently forgot the cause of her troubles. Many were the suitors that applied for her hand, but she refused them all. In the year 1854, Hershberger, who was a scholar and a fine writer, wrote a letter to a friend in Germany, giving an account of the voyage, loss of the vessel, and the rescue of himself and Louis S.

This letter was published in a paper in Germany which fell into the hands of the faithful girl, by which she learned that Louis had been saved; but whether he was yet living, and if still true to her, put her in great suspense. Her father died in 1858, leaving her a little fortune. In July, 1859, she was in a store in the town of Landshut, and while waiting on the merchant, who was engaged to sell her some goods, she picked up a copy of Der Deutsche in Ohio, a paper published by brother Raby of Canton, formerly of this county, and in it noticed the death of the wife of Louis S. She concluded this Louis was her old lover, and immediately she began to make preparations to sail for America and seek him out. She arrived in this country at the house of Louis, on the 21st of December, and on the 10th of last month they were made happy by being united in marriage at the house of the bridegroom.

Prospects of the Foreign Stave and Timber Market.

From the Detroit Tribune.

It is well known that there has been more staves and timber got out in Michigan during the past season than were ever got out in any one previous year. This has been a most fortunate thing for our State, and we congratulate our enterprising lumbermen upon the prospect before them. It will be seen by the following letter, received by a prominent house in this city, that the foreign market is looking up:

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 14, 1860.

DEAR SIR—The lumber market is more active, and the prospects encouraging. Prices have advanced considerably for square timber and deals, and with great prosperity in the manufacturing districts, we look to see this improvement fully maintained. The old stock of Walnut is nearly exhausted, and fresh supplies will come to a good market. It should be shipped in the log, square shape, or if in planks not to be less than 6x8 inches thick and as wide and long as possible.

Staves continue in good demand, and for standard, which have been so long neglected, there is at least some inquiry. The most suitable timber cargo for this market should consist of a limited quantity of good sound Oak in the log, and the larger the better—Walnut, as above described, and to fill up with Staves, some Oak planks 3x6 inches thick, and a few Hickory butts of second growth.

TWENTY STEPS TO ONE WOMAN'S HEART.

STEP TWELVE.

Two weeks elapsed. Every night Alice took up Dolph's little note and looked over it, letting her eyes rest for a moment on the signature as though she were listening to hear herself pronounce it. But no other letter came. Adolph Munster was not as happy as he had represented to his mother. He had expected an answer to his letter addressed to Alice; he had promised himself a long epistle of tenderness, asking why he had not written, and full of appeals; but none such came. He mingled with society freely, made many acquaintances, but always at the end of the gayest day found his thoughts reverting to Alice.

When he had made up his mind to forget her, a letter came from his mother, saying that Winne Ballard had returned, and hinting at his visits to Chesterfield, and gently upbraiding Dolph for his negligence in not writing. Instead of forgetting her, he immediately set about penning a long and irresistible letter, which cost him much care and many repeated efforts.

While he was thus engaged, Alice was sitting by the side of Winne in his cutter, their voices mingling cheerily with the music of the sleigh bells. Winne was taking her to see his mother. During that ride he asked her to be his wife, and she consented. Yes, consented; and at the time she thought she loved him, but it was, perhaps, the same old feeling again—a foolish sacrifice of herself to retaliate on Dolph. But she expressed no sadness. The home of Winne's mother was a comfortable, cheery place, that reminded her of her own home and mother, and they did so much to make her pleased, and seemed so solicitous of her happiness, that it were strange, indeed, if she did not feel glad. Ballard was the happiest of men; his ecstacy knew no bounds. But Alice did not suffer herself to contemplate the position in which she stood; she dreaded to think of it. But when, after a two days' visit, she returned to Chesterfield to find a long letter from Dolph, pride could no longer impede the current, and tears, bitter tears, were shed in that little room.

"My dear Alice," it commenced, "why have you not written to me? what is the meaning of this coldness? what have I done? Perhaps I have presumed on our former intimacy in expecting this of you, but I cannot help it."

And so he went on. It was all tender upbraiding. Not a word of sorrow for his own conduct, nothing in extenuation! And yet it had been an easy task there to have prevailed upon Alice to forget all, and to throw herself in his arms; but it was ordered otherwise. "Why did he not write to me before. It is because he had heard of Winne's return that he thus recovers his communicativeness. but it is to late." and the little woman looked all the firmness that was requisite to make her words true. She wrote no answer.

It was not long after, that she said to Mr. Munster. "I am going to leave you," and but a few days passed when it was talked of all over the town with strong comments, and no little wonderment, that Alice was to be married to Winne Ballard.

Poor Dolph; he waited patiently for the expected letter, and when he could wait no longer he wrote to his mother and made something of a revelation in his phrenzy that opened that worthy lady's eyes; but she wrote back that "Alice was to be married on the morrow."

This intelligence reached the young man as he sat in his solitude, with his head on his hands, indulging in the pleasant memories, of which Alice was the whole mise en scene. It stunned him. It was a step beyond what he ever dreaded; it seemed an impossibility! He at first felt inclined to treat it as a joke, a delusion, a mistake; but the more he reflected on the words the sterner and more implacable their meaning. And when at last he settled into the calm realization of the misfortune, he struck his hand against his brow, and exclaimed, "Oh God! what a fool I have been!" The unnatural spirit was bending already!

He packed up his wardrobe. He hurried away from the school without the formality of asking leave, and posted home in a state of silly delirium. It was a day's journey by the fastest conveyances, and before he reached Chesterfield Alice was married, and was living in the old home of her childhood with Winne.

His interview with his mother was passionate, unreasonable, and full of an unaccustomed vehemence that must have astonished her. He accused her of bringing it about, and said that "he was ruined."

"Dolph," she answered, "you surely cannot feel so deeply on a matter that I never heard you speak of before."

"Feel, mother! feel. Why, it has been my dream by day and by night, how I would win her and was her's. I had built up my whole future on this single foundation that is now washed away. You may call me wild and foolish, and bid me collect my senses and be reasonable, but I cannot. Tom might have seen the great bond that had grown up between us, and not have suffered a stranger to come in and tear it asunder!"

"If there is any one to blame, my son," answered the parent, "it is yourself."—You say, "there was a bond." If such was the case, "you, yourself, was the first to break it, by your conduct when you left home. You never thought to strengthen it. Day after day Alice watched for a letter from you. Day after day she spread her note paper out on her table to answer your letter, but none ever came. You talk of winning. You acted as though you expected Alice to woo you; and when a young man comes along and meets the sympathy and warmth of her nature with a corresponding geniality, when she is wooed and won by some one else, you find fault with your mother. It is a deserved lesson. I hope your pride and selfishness will suffer by it."

And he did did suffer by it; but, alas! for human nature, all else suffered too. He would see her, and despite the entreaties and advice of his mother, he started for the house of the Ballard's.

Alice sat in her new home, surrounded by all the homely comforts that Winne could procure. The carol was sounding pleasantly—if not so enthusiastically as of old—among the little rooms of the cottage. She was thinking of Dolph. There was a change in her countenance. The old joyousness had fled, and it was not hard to detect in the placid repose of her face, the stern resolution that fed it. Poor Alice!

It was thus that Dolph surprised her, and regardless of propriety, poured forth his tremulous feelings. His lips were unsealed, and all the depth of the love which was once a blessing, but was now a crime, was now revealed to her. She trembled, but was true to herself.

"Mr. Munster," she said "you are acting in a strange and dangerous manner. I do not wish to hear any more. I was wrong in listening to you as I have. If you value my respect hereafter, you will leave me instantly!"

But Dolph, though he went away, could not take with him the consequences of that revelation. Notwithstanding the little woman's struggles and noble determination, it rankled in her bosom. She could not help dwelling on something that was lost. She made a dreadful discovery by degrees—she did not love Winne!

Dolph went away, no one knew whither; and time moved swiftly along. The home of the Ballards was a happy home. Winne never discovered aught to mar his peace of mind. His wife was the most devoted and cheerful of little women; though she gave up singing there was always a serene smile on her face. A year passed, and Tom Wood came back. Then was the cottage enlarged and re-furnished, and began to make quite a respectable appearance.

But the close of the year saw a change in Alice. There had been an addition to the family of a bright little child, with blue eyes; but the mother lay upon her back between life and death. Day after day the doctor came and looked at her, but said nothing. Winne sat by her side; her mother smoothed her pillow, but there was an inexorable fact lowering more plainly into sight every day, crushing out all hope. The blue eyes sank, and lost their light; the cheeks paled to the complexion of death; the pulse failed day by day; and one bright Spring morning, when Nature was singing her song of liberation, and the swallows were chirping at the open window, Alice died! Her last words, whispered into her foster mother's ear, were:

"Tell Dolph I forgive him."

Mrs. Munster bowed her head, and seemed to understand what she had never known before; and said to herself, amid her tears:

"Broken! broken!"

STEP THIRTEEN.

Three months passed after this; on the afternoon of a sultry day, when the hot breeze scarce rustled the long grass at the graveyard, and open leaves turned themselves lazily; when the hum of insects was loud and continuous, and the shadows of the glistening white tombstones fell lengthened across the many mounds, the figure of a man, with unequal gait, came out from the cluster of willows, and making its way with difficulty among the the graves, stood in front of a tablet marked—Alice Ballard. His face was somewhat bloated and strongly marked with the ravage of strong drink. His watery eye rested on the name chiselled in the warm marble, and his hand, that lay on the edge of a neighboring stone, trembled nervously. It was Dolph. And the burning sun that shed its rays aslant the long field moved him not. The orb went down behind a curtain of carmine clouds and he stood there still, bathed in the ruddy glow; and he lifted his hands trembling above head his, and there, over that grave, made a vow to reform. A moment later, and he disappeared in the twilight among the willows.

MONETARY.

SATURDAY P. M., March 10th, 1860.

The week has been a close one in the monetary market both as regards exchange and currency. The supply of the former does not at all correspond with the extent of our Eastern obligations maturing, and the tendency is still towards a greater stringency. There can be little hope of relief from this state of things until our produce begins to move towards the seaboard.—Currency has also been scarce, and none but the most unexceptionable business paper could be negotiated at the banks.

At Cincinnati money matters appear to be easing up slightly. The Gazette, of Thursday, contains the following:

No change of importance was observable in the money market to-day. If anything, matters were easier, but there was still a heavy demand for loans, as compared with the supply of capital, and the discount houses were not able to take all the first class paper offered. Rates of interest were firm at 10@12 ₰ cent, the latter the prevailing figure with most of the bankers.

Eastern exchange was steady with a supply and demand about equal. There was a good deal obtained one way and another by dealers. It came in from New Orleans, St. Louis, and interior points, through parties operating in produce, and a moderate amount was in the city. These receipts, with the returns from bank note redemption, kept up the supply, and the demand was fully met at our quotations.

	BUYING.	SELLING.
New York sight	¼ prem.	½ prem.
Boston	¼ prem.	½ prem.
Philadelphia	¼ prem.	½ prem.
Baltimore	¾ prem.	¾ prem.
New Orleans	¼ dis-par	¼ prem.
American Gold	2	2

The Chicago Press & Tribune of to-day says:

The exchange market is gradually becoming closer. Bankers sell only to customers and as sparingly as possible. The supply seems to be drawn down to the lowest "working limit." In what way or from what source it is to be increased or even maintained for the next few weeks does not exactly appear.

Gold 2@2½. Currency is abundant. Good Eastern business papers, of course, decidedly scarce.

"FROM CUT" HITS BACK.—Messrs. Editors:—Your correspondent "Prudence" seems to squirm and writhe in his article in this morning's issue. I don't wonder at it. I should, if I had wheat to deliver in June at one dollar a bushel—he forgot that, probably.

I have carefully read over my communication, and his, and am content to have any one look at them and see which looks the most excited, or most like a fair statement. I must confess I had no wish or desire to make any impression, other than facts. I would simply say to "Prudence" keep cool—wait and see.

MILWAUKEE, March 10, 1860. PRODUCE.

LARGE STOCK OF BREADSTUFFS AT BUFFALO.—A Buffalo correspondent of the Detroit Tribune writes that paper, that the stock of flour, wheat and oats there is very large, being nearly as follows:

Winter Wheat, bushels	140,000
Spring " "	400,000
Oats, bus	200,000

The writer proceeds:

The stock of winter is rather less than at the close of navigation. The stock of spring is larger. The Canadian farmers have sold freely, and the amount of wheat from that source reaching this market, has exceeded the local demand, hence the increase. Oats are in excess also, 200,000 bushels over the amount in store at the close, so the price has receded 2 to 3c, being now held at 35c on track. To-day good spring would sell by the quantity at 115c, which is an advance of 2c during the past ten days. On Friday last 25,000 bushels red winter sold from store at $1.25. Corn is slow of sale at 61@62c. The mills in the interior, as a general thing, have larger stock than usual at this time of year. In face of all this holders are firm, the opinion gaining ground that there must be a good demand at full rates, but the most strange thing of the whole is that no one can point out from whence the demand is likely to arise. Care and prudence will be needed to prevent heavy losses.

CHICAGO WHOLESALE MARKET.—The receipts of the articles named, at Chicago yesterday, were as follows:

Flour, bbls	736
Wheat, bus	12,345
Corn, bus	15,571
Oats, bus	4,115
Barley, bus	1,293
Rye, bus	580

The Press & Tribune says:

The Flour market to-day was firm, with a fair inquiry, but limited sales at $5@5,37 for fair to choice Spring extras. The demand for wheat was more active, and under favorable news by the steamer the market advanced 1@2c, with sales at one at $1,06@1,06 for old receipts. There was an active inquiry by shippers and millers, and lots on track were sold at a range of $1,05@1,14 by sample, and $1,20@1,28 for choice seed wheat. Corn was in good shipping demand, and the market advanced 3c, with sales of new receipts No. 1 at 46c in store; 42½@43c for No. 2; and 42@43c for rejected—closing with a good inquiry and a firm market. Oats were active and sold at 34@38c on track. Rye in better supply and rather easier—sales ranging from 54 to 55c Barley dull and tending downward, under a good supply and but a limited inquiry. Timothy Seed in active demand and advanced 5c, with sales at $2,65@2,80 for dirty to prime. Clover more active at decline of 15@30c, with liberal sales at $4@4,10. Hungarian Grass Seed quiet at 50@55c. Highwines steady at 20c. Alcohol, 41@42c. Provisions quiet. Butter very dull.

CINCINNATI PROVISION AND PRODUCE MARKET:—Receipts at Cincinnati on Thursday, as published in the Gazette, include:

Flour, bbls	1,017
Corn, bus	8,992
Barley, bus	1,747
Wheat, bus	75
Oats, bus	2,130
Lard, bbls	5
Do. Kegs	7
Pork and Bacon, bbls	20
" " tcs	50
" " lbs	190,441

The Gazette reports indications of an improved feeling in the provision markets:

As money matters ease up, and needy holders get matters adjusted, there begins to be a speculative feeling, which was observable in the market in several places this afternoon, though special sales were taken to keep it out of sight. The trade, as has been evident for some time, do not want confidence. There is enough of this; but money has been scarce, and hence the late depression in prices; and to the improvement, or the immediate prospect of improvement in financial affairs, the re-action which seems to be brewing is attributable.

There was a good deal of inquiry for bulk shoulders, and 100,000 lbs sold at 6¾, and buyers were plenty here with offers at 6¾. Sides could have been sold at 8¾ for light and 8½ for heavy.

Bacon did not receive much attention, and the sales were light at 7¾@8½ for shoulders and sides. About 600 bbls mess pork sold at 17,00@17,87, and for choice brands there were more buyers than sellers at these figures. Nothing done in barrel lard. Holders are not pressing it, as they look with confidence for a pressing hooray foreign demand. Private advices by the Africa give quotations equal to 12c ₰ lb, which affords a handsome margin on the rates current here, considering the favorable freight arrangements attainable over the through line. The trade are now anticipating a foreign demand that will offset the falling off in home consumption. About 1,500 kegs prime lard sold in lots at 11c.

Flour was in fair demand and firm at $5,60@5,85 for superfine. The exports were in excess of the receipts. Whisky was feeble at 23½c. Wheat advanced 3c ₰ bushel, closing at 1,30@1,35 for prime white, and 1,25 @1,28 for do red. Barley is firmer, with an improved demand, but buyers are not willing to pay 80c for prime. Very good grades of Fall sold at 76@77c. Corn steady. Oats dull. Coffee was buoyant at 12@ 13¼c for common to choice. Molasses 41@42, and 16¾c for common to choice. There is a good jobbing trade, but business in the large way is dull.

ALBANY MARKET, MARCH 7TH.—Flour and Meal—The resumption of navigation has caused flour to advance 25c @ bbl upon all grades, with a consumption and an improved speculative demand. The assortment is good, but the stock of flour here is only moderate, no one house having any large amount on hand. The tendency is still upward partially and a further advance is speedily anticipated upon the better and extra brands of State and Canadian.

Common to good State	$5,10@5,30
Fancy and extra State	5,30@5,50
Common to good Western	5,00@5,90

Laguayra is also quiet at 13¾@14c ₰ lb for good to prime whites, from second hands.—Java there is a moderate demand at 18¾c ₰ lb.—The ship Binshee arrived to-day, with 2,600 bags from Rio.

Grain—Sales of 5,000 bus Wheat were offered this morning, and prices were firm at $1,45@1,55 for fair to prime white, and $1,57@1,60 ₰ bushel for choice family lots do, with a number of sales at the highest price; red sold at $1,30@1,40 ₰ bus for fair to prime. Of Corn 26,000 bus offered, both white and yellow selling at 71@73c, by weight, for good to prime dry lots, and damp and common lots as usual, at 66@68c ₰ bus by measure—demand good.

SATURDAY, P. M.

PROBABILITY OF EARLY NAVIGATION IN GREEN BAY.—The Green Bay Advocate of Thursday contains the following paragraph:

Wednesday noon, as we write, the river in front of the city is free from ice, except the little strips near the banks. The steam ferry has commenced running between this city and Howard, yesterday. A gentleman, who came up from down the Bay yesterday reports the ice in a broken condition as far down as Surgeon Bay and with the continuance of the present warm weather the prospect is that the Bay will be navigable to Lake Michigan in a week or ten days.

NAVIGATION ON LAKE ERIE.—The New York & Erie Railroad propellers sailed from Cleveland for Toledo and Dunkirk yesterday morning.

FIRST BOAT LOAD OF CORN BY THE CANAL.—The canal boat Adelia, from Joliet, with a load of Corn, passed through Lockport Thursday night, and probably arrived here last evening.—Chi. Press & Trib., Saturday.
